1 OVERVIEW OF THE SUBJECT

Roller-coaster year

The global pandemic has influenced our operations and daily work in many ways. Some of those influences have been negative, but also many positive things and progress have taken place during 2020. This review is intended to give a good coverage on the past year both in terms of our secular work efforts and its highlights. We hope that you will find this annual report and its web-links insightful and informative. Keep in touch!

As before, the subject of Accounting and Finance formed the major part of the Department of Accounting and Finance. Year 2020 was financially tight for the Department, but Accounting and Finance managed to operate (mainly in a remote mode) successfully and sustained its position as the most popular major among the B.Sc. and M.Sc. students of the School. For example, the number of accepted Master's theses reached 77, while the yearly average in Accounting and Finance during 1997-2020 is 54. Ultimately, 83 Bachelor's and 91 Master's degrees were granted during 2020. In research, the faculty members of the subject continued their efforts to conduct research of high international quality, their doctorate supervision, teaching in various forums, as well as participating to administrative duties. For example, three doctoral thesis were successfully defended in the subject. Scholars of Accounting and Finance published (or in press) their works in several journals during 2020: International Review of Economics and Finance; The North American Journal of Economics and Finance; Asia-Pacific Journal of Accounting & Economics; The International Journal of Accounting; European Accounting Review and Journal of Business Venturing Insights.

Academic involvement and impact

The faculty of the Department worked within several international scientific organisations, the most significant being the European Accounting Association (EAA), the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management (EIASM) and the American Accounting Association (AAA). The faculty members also worked for international research journals on their editorial boards and as reviewers. Professor Markus Granlund continued as an Associate Editor of the International Journal of Accounting Information Systems. Professor Mika Vaihekoski continued as an Associate Editor of European Journal of Finance. Professor Lukka, in turn, continued as an Associate Editor of Qualitative Research in Accounting & Management.

In terms of dissertations, Niina Ratsula's doctoral dissertation "Interplay between technical and social control: Internal control and SOX compliance at Nokia" increases understanding regarding the relationship between written rules (i.e., technical control) and the culture of compliance (i.e., social control). Empirical analysis is drawn from Nokia, a Finnish-based public company subject to SOX legislation. The results indicated that the social controls have a significant role in implementing technical controls. In Mika Jakovaara's dissertation "Feelings of emotion in strategic investment decisions" finds that emotions play several important roles in strategic investment decisions. Furthermore, feelings of emotion appear to influence the use of accounting information in strategic investment decisions. Mika Hannula's dissertation "Essays on strategic trading" discusses the strategic trading aspects using analytical modeling and numerical methods. Strategic behavior implemented in the models reflect real-world trading better. Hannula's thesis received the OP Group Research Foundation's shared prize for being the best doctoral dissertation in economics/finance during the academic year 2019–20.

National virtual seminars and business collaboration

The faculty of Accounting and Finance also worked actively on a national level. In January 2020 started a new form of seminar series in collaboration with scholars of the Tampere University under the title "Joint Seminar on Interdisciplinary Accounting Research" (JSIAR). Its first edition took place on 23 January 2020, when Hendrik Vollmer (Warwick) presented there. JSIAR meets approximately once a month and the first experiences from it have been both exciting and very encouraging. Among others, a considerable number of departmental research seminars were arranged during the year. The faculty also engaged in notable cooperation with the business community. This included close co-operation with several companies related to on-going field research projects. Dr. Antti Fredriksson continued as a member at the Auditing Board and at the Finnish Accounting Board.

Collaboration as related to teaching occurred with Amer Sports, Code of Conduct Company, Deloitte, Financial Supervisory Authority, KPMG, PwC, and OP Corporate Bank. Several of our visiting lectures from practise share their time and expertise on pro bono. We want to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation for this.

Important services

Several members of the faculty of Accounting and Finance worked actively in different managerial and advisory positions and committees of both the School and the University. Professor Granlund continued as the Dean of the School and also chairing its Council. Professor Lukka continued his second four-year term to chair the University Collegiate Council. He also continued as a member of the Council of the School. Professor Schadewitz continued as a Professor in charge for Doctoral Studies in Accounting and Finance. Professor Vaihekoski was the Director of the Doctoral Programme of the School and as a Member of the Committee of Research and Doctoral Studies. Dr. Antti Fredriksson continued as the Head of the Subject.

Pandemic has caused a massive disruption to our normal daily lives. This new situation has caused also a massive digital leap forward in terms of remote work and use of digital platforms. During 2020 we gained some good experiences regarding how digital platforms can rationalize coursework. Common understanding is that several good remote practices will remain after pandemic will be defeated. In other words, we will see more hybrid, flexible, solutions regarding teaching.

New normal ahead

It is our sincere gratitude to thank the entire personnel of the subject of Accounting and Finance for their hard, competent, and productive work done. We are an attractive work place evidenced by several new faces in our team – welcome you all! Furthermore, best wishes and appreciation for Ulla-Maarit Valve after her long lasting and highly valued service for the subject. We would like to extend our acknowledgements to all other stakeholders for their inspiring interaction and contributions, too. Also students' subject association Aktiiva earns recognition for its role between students and faculty. The activities and productivity of us – the Accounting and Finance subject's faculty – shows evidence that, despite financial constraints, much can be achieved professionally when we all at the subject work jointly for the whole. When exit from the pandemic will occur we are in many ways regenerated. Also our everyday interaction without additional pandemic restrictions is time to look forward to and warmly welcomed!

3.3 Research in Progress

Oana Apostol

Oana has several projects on diverse themes related to sustainability accounting, as follows.

Jointly with Colin Dey, Senior Lecturer at University of Stirling, UK, Oana is exploring the intersection between accounting and social movements, being particularly interested in their potential to induce change in organizations and society. As part of this project, the degrowth social movement in Finland is investigated from the theoretical angle of identity and boundary work.

Accountability is another major interest, which is pursued in different projects. In one of Oana's projects, she examines corporate and state accountability towards civil society in the context of stakeholder dialogue. Accountability theme is also an important one in a project initiated in 2016 jointly with researcher Terhi Chakhovich. The project empirically looks into issues related to internal air quality. In the same project, the empirical dataset is also used to explore issues of objectivity and measurement.

Professional identity is a topic that is researched in two related projects. In one of them, the interface between tax practitioners' identity and tax avoidance practices is examined, together with Alina Pop (Christian University „Dimitrie Cantemir”, Bucharest). In the second, issues related to accountants, identity and ideology are explored.

Oana is also interested in the internal perspective to sustainability/responsibility, looking at how middle-managers engage with the emerging discourse of sustainability in their organization. A TEKES-funded project that started in 2016 and ended in June 2019 gave the opportunity to apply theoretical perspectives of sensemaking, cognitive dissonance and framing in analyzing a dataset of interviews conducted with a major business partner.

Abu Chowdhury

Abu is working on initial public offerings and insider trading papers with Professor Mika Vaihekoski. These papers are in progress and expected to be completed by the end of this year.

Antti Fredriksson

Antti works on collaboration with several colleagues. The first research theme is bank-firm relationships. The joint research collaboration includes five researchers from three countries. The research project is focused on investigating the role of trust in financing relationships and more specifically whether loan managers' trust in entrepreneurs can help both banks and SMEs in their relationships. The added value of the research is to investigate trust's role in financial relationships at European level by collecting data from countries with different cultural background.

The second research theme examines the interlocking networks of board members and auditors and how the networks are intertwined with the financial accounting outcomes. To understand board composition and especially the requirements of board independence we need to scrutinize the social structure made up of individuals, which are connected by specific types of interdependency.

The third research theme examines auditors' professional exam scores and career development. The project employs survival analyses method analyzing all Authorized Public Accountants in Finland from year 1980 to 2016. The research sheds light to questions like how to become an audit partner, and whether professional exam score is associated with the ability to acquire economically important clients? The research is collaborated with David Hay (University of Auckland), Lasse Niemi (Aalto University) and Arpine Maghakyan (Aalto University).

Markus Granlund

Together with Prof. Kari Lukka (TSE) and Dr. David Bedford (University of Technology Sydney), Markus is studying the practical meaning of research quality in the academe, and its associations with performance measurement systems and related agency. The working title of the study is "Safeguarding the unknown? Practical meaning of research quality in the performance measurement era at universities".

Together with Prof. Teemu Malmi and Dr. Katja Kolehmainen (Aalto University) Markus works on a longitudinal case study of MCS in a global ICT company entitled "Explaining unintended consequences of MCS - managerial cognitions and inertia in the case of Nokia Mobile Phones." The purpose of this study is to develop theory on the specific mechanisms and dynamics through which MCS may feed to organizational inertia and even failure.

Together with Jani Taipaleenmäki (TSE, KnowIT) and Prof. Marko Järvenpää (University of Vaasa) Markus has a research project examining the relationship of management accounting, Big Data technologies and Artificial Intelligence under a working title “Big Data, Artificial Intelligence and management accounting: Three scenarios of the effects of technological transformation”.

Kirsi Kari

Kirsi is working on her doctoral dissertation, which focuses on management control in the innovation network context.

Mikko Kepsu

Mikkos’s research deals with earnings management and it is based on his doctoral thesis ”Earnings management in the process of preparing corporate financial reports”.

Erkki Lassila

Erkki is working on his doctoral dissertation, which focuses on performative and transformative roles of calculative practices of accounting in modern digital context. Especially, Erkki is interested about the organizational and societal impacts of accounting related Big Data technologies.

Kari Lukka

In 2014, Kari started a research project with Albrecht Becker (University of Innsbruck, Austria) on the topic “Living in the publish or perish culture”. Currently a paper on this topic is under revision for a resubmission to a journal.

Together with Marc Wouters (KIT, Germany) Kari has a joint research project, started in 2015, exploring the practical running of interventionist research projects from the viewpoint of their time-management challenges. Currently a paper on this topic is under revision for a resubmission to a journal.

In 2017, Kari kicked-off, together with Sven Modell (Manchester Business School, UK) and Eija Vinnari (University of Tampere), a research project exploring the epistemological differences between ANT and ‘normal science’ in the context of accounting research. A new full draft of this paper is soon due to be completed.

In 2018, Kari started a research project with Milla Wiren (TSE) “Accounting and ‘silent causality’ in the context of algorithm-based decision-making”. The paper is now under publication consideration in a scholarly journal.

In 2020, Kari started a research project with Albrecht Becker (University of Innsbruck, Austria) on the topic “The future of critical interdisciplinary accounting research: Towards performative ontology”. Currently a paper on this topic is under publication consideration with a journal.

Kari also has a co-project with Markus Granlund, which is presented in the respective section of Markus.

Muddassar Malik

Muddassar is working on four research papers of his doctoral dissertation which are scheduled over the following three years. The research papers are covering the research topics of risk governance of banks. The first research paper is investigating the impact of risk governance on the financial performance of public commercial banks of OECD, second paper addresses risk governance and risk-taking of public commercial banks of OECD, and third paper discusses diversity in risk governance and its impact on risk-taking of public commercial banks of OECD. Fourth paper will investigate whether the impact of risk governance on financial performance differs between public banks and public commercial banks. Research period in all these papers is from 2000 to 2019. All dissertation papers are being co-authored by research supervisors.

In addition to working on doctoral research Muddassar is actively working on a joint-working paper with Prof. Hannu Schadewitz and A/Prof. Omar Al Farooque from University of New England Business School Australia. This working paper investigates risk-taking of the US public banks in the presence of risk committees during and around GFC and provides support to the introduction of Dodd-Frank Act (2010). It takes research period from 2006 to 2010 and includes 228 US public banks. This study assumes positive association between risk-taking which is defined by Tier 1 and risk committee. Preliminary results suggest positive correlation between risk committee and Tier 1 during the GFC.

Antti Miihkinen

Antti has several research projects which focus on risk reporting. Together with Professor Saverio Bozzolan (LUISS University) he has studied the influence of audit firm and partner characteristics on the quality of mandatory non-financial (risk) disclosures. This research will be published in The International Journal of Accounting in June 2021. Antti also has ongoing studies on the relation between risk disclosure and several constructs such as internal information quality and earnings information. He is also studying the economic consequences of voluntary disclosure on competition. Furthermore, Antti has a project jointly with Professor Minna Martikainen (University of Vaasa) and Assistant Professor Luke Watson (Villanova University) where they examine the board characteristics and disclosure tone. Antti's newest research projects focus on a new perspective of management risk disclosures and the determinants and economic consequences of climate risk disclosures.

Vesa Partanen

Vesa's current research deals with cost management. The theme of the project is to analyze the nature and dynamics of various cost management techniques in different organizations.

Peeter Peda

Together with Prof. Eija Vinnari (Tampere University), Peeter is working on a research examining the capacity of different sustainability related uncertainty concerns to open and close decision-making processes in megaproject planning. Related to this project, he is also interested in public budgeting practices for sustainable development impacts as well as accountabilities in network-based delivery of such impacts.

Jointly with Jan Pfister (TSE), Peeter is currently working on a study of a global ICT company which concerns the relationship between digital communication platforms and performance management system design for agility.

In 2019 Peeter continued a research project together with Jan Pfister exploring the legitimization of disruptive (digital) technologies and ethical dilemmas related to it.

Valtteri Peltonen

Valtteri is working on his dissertation, in which he studies market risk management related questions. In particular, Valtteri is interested in the risk management of derivative portfolios and issues related to modeling dependence uncertainty.

Jan Pfister

Together with Gaia Bassani and Cristiana Cattaneo (both University of Bergamo, Italy), Jan explores an ethnography on management accounting change in a Southern European construction company, thereby introducing new theory from the leadership field to the accounting literature.

Together with Peeter Peda (Tampere University) and David Otley (Lancaster University, UK), Jan is working on a project that explores the implications of digital communication platforms for management control systems and organizational agility. Related to this project, a study is in process with Peeter Peda on the time-pressure paradox of the digital age.

Together with Lukas Goretzki (Stockholm School of Economics, Sweden), Jan works on a project on performance measurement and identity work.

In collaboration with Thierry Amselm (IE Business School, Spain) and Bertrand Malsch (Queens University, Canada), Jan is working on a project on mindfulness and performance measurement systems.

Jan initiated a research project on the Berkeley Smart Village Movement (SVM) in rural India, an initiative to empower poor rural communities through digital technologies and co-innovation platforms and give them access to global markets and networks, bringing new knowledge, capabilities, and wealth flows in a responsible manner. This ongoing project employs ethnographic field research methods and involved two field visits in India (including New Delhi, Meghalaya, Arunchal Pradesh) in Dec 2019 and Feb 2020. In this project, he closely collaborates with Solomon Darwin (the founder of the SVM, University of California, Berkeley, USA), Sarah Jack (Stockholm School of Economics, Sweden) and leading scholars from the fields of information systems and innovation.

Hannu Schadewitz

Jointly with Satu-Päivi Kantola, Hannu studies the role of international legal systems and business integrity on accounting quality. Currently they analyse discretionary accounting differences between Northern and Southern EU countries. The paper is now under revision.

In 2018, together with Dr. Jonas Spohr (Åbo Academi University), Hannu started a project studying whether and how board composition and acquisition performance are potentially associated. We focus on Nordic listed firms from 2009 – 2018 with large goodwill (GW) change and identify the board composition of the date of the acquisition. We hypothesize and evidence that firms with large GW increases (decreases) are associated with fewer (more) females on board. These results give insight on board composition and its consequences contributing to the gender literature in accounting and corporate governance. The paper is now under publication consideration in a scholarly journal.

In 2020, Hannu started a research project with Jill Atkins (Sheffield University Management School) and Wenyi Li (Huanzhong Normal University) on the theme “Causes and realizations of sustainability orientation and accounting in dairy industry – evidence on two institutional settings”. The fieldwork is in progress.

Hannu also has co-projects with Ingolf Kloppenburg and Muddassar Malik, which are presented in the respective sections of Ingolf and Muddassar.

Mika Vaihekoski

Mika is currently collaborating with several researchers on research projects. He is working with Associate Professor Jan Antell from Hanken School of Economics on conditional relationship between equity premium and market risk. In addition, he is working with Prof. John Broussard (University of Oklahoma) on a paper analysing the dual class premium and with Dr. Abu Chowdhury on papers analysing IPOs and insider trading. He is also studying the historical development of the Finnish stock market.

Ingolf Kloppenburg

Ingolf is currently working on his dissertation about financial misrepresentation. A financial misrepresentation is hereby defined as a deliberate violation of US-GAAP. He is basing his research on a dataset consisting of SEC-investigation reports. As part of the dissertation, he is jointly with Hannu Schadewitz working on a paper about the impact of misrepresented annual reports on financial (sell-side) analysts. Moreover, he is finishing a paper investigating whether capital markets recognise misrepresentations.
