

CIDI 25 ECTS | 17th edition

Clinical Instruments for Evaluating Health - Development, Evaluation and Implementation at the Department of Nursing Science, University of Turku, Finland

Responsible teachers
Professors Riitta Suhonen
& Minna Stolt

MODULE I 4.-12.1.2027

Concept of instrument
Concept of measurement
Measuring health
Different types of instruments

MODULE II 13.1.-28.2.2027

Defining a clinical problem and concept analysis
Methods for locating existing instruments
Questionnaire design and pilot testing
Validity and reliability testing
Modification and equivalence

MODULE III 1.3.-4.5.2027

How to use an instrument?
Scientific usability of an instrument
Practical usability of an instrument
Economic evaluation of an instrument and its usability

Clinical Instruments for Evaluating Health – Development, Evaluation and Implementation

CIDI Course in 4 January – 4 May 2027

Module I January 4th - 12th

- Contact teaching in Turku, January 11th - 12th
- Independent reading, January 4th - 11th

Module II January 13th - February 28th

- Contact teaching in Turku, January 13th - 15th
- Independent working, January 16th - February 28th

Module III March 1st - May 4th

- Asynchronized online lectures and written assignments, March 1st - April 4th
- Independent working and reading, April 5th - May 2nd
- Online synchronized seminars on Zoom, May 3rd - 4th

Target groups

Master and PhD students in nursing and health sciences
Advanced Practice Nurses and Post Doc researchers

Contact details

University of Turku
Department of Nursing Science
20014 University of Turku, Finland
Email: intnurse@utu.fi

Picture: Suvi Harvisalo / University of Turku

Application deadline

15 November 2026

at: link.webropol.com/s/cidi2027
(or QR code below)

Maximum 20 students are selected to the course based on registration speed.

Persons in charge

Professor Riitta Suhonen &
Professor Minna Stolt

