East Asian Studies

- The Minor in East Asian Studies programme provides a comprehensive introduction to the contemporary history and societies of East Asia on general issues of East Asia as well as particularities of the three major East Asian societies and states. In addition, the programme includes one language course (Chinese, Japanese, or Korean).
- Courses available in the spring:
  - MEAS1109 Contemporary East Asia (book exam)
  - MEAS1106 Introduction to Chinese History
  - MEAS1043 Japanese History and Contemporary Society
- Sign-up in Peppi if not mentioned otherwise.
- Contact: Tuula Karjalainen, tuusah@utu.fi

ASIANET

- The Asian Programme is an interdisciplinary Bachelor's and Master's level study programme which provides students with basic knowledge of Asia. For students whose study or career plans relate to Asia, this programme provides a good introduction to the region.
- Sign-up Application guidelines and the application form in <http://www.asianet.fi>
- Available courses here and here.

North American Studies

- North American Studies (NAMS) is a joint program within Social Sciences and Humanities. Organized by the John Morton Center for North American Studies and the Department of English, the program offers an exciting transdisciplinary and multi-methodological approach to the study of North America.
- The North American Studies program provides students with an opportunity to assess from a variety of perspectives the societies, cultures, and politics of North American nations, communities, and phenomena.
- Most of the lecture courses in the North American Studies curriculum are taught in the autumn.
- In the spring, mainly independent study options are available, e.g. NAMS1102 Road readings of the USA.
- Registration: See Peppi study register and the study guide for details regarding registration policies of individual courses and independent studies.
- Contact: Janne Korkka, Dept. of English (jkorkka@utu.fi)

Inequalities, Interventions and New Welfare State (INVEST)

- A cross-disciplinary, international study programme that familiarizes the students with profound understanding of the key socioeconomic and demographic changes in societies, the role of welfare state institutions and services in compensating and/or enforcing them in different country contexts.
- The courses are offered for exchange students who study on the Master level in their home university.
- Courses available in the spring:
  - INWS0014 Social Inequality
  - INWS0015 Research Themes
  - INWS0022 Evolutionary Perspectives

- Online UniPID courses (Virtual Studies Course Catalogue)

Finnish Culture Studies

- Finnish Culture Studies is a non-degree programme organized by the School of History, Culture and Arts Studies at the University of Turku.
- It offers a rich variety of courses that open cultural and historical perspectives to Finnish phenomena from nation building and communities to art, music and literature, to film and media, to gender and indigenous, religious or folk culture, popular culture or cultural heritage. Finnish culture is there seen in the Nordic, European and global context; all the time in interaction with the rest of the world.
- Courses can be taken individually or combined to a larger module of 10-30 ECTS.
- Registration: In Peppi, or as stated in the study guide.
- Contact: Pertti Grönholm, pergro@utu.fi

Futures Studies

- Futures Studies is a new emerging field of research. As the future does not exist yet, futurists study the future projections of and discontinuities in past trends and current views of the long-term future. Futures Studies is interested in the probable futures, possible futures and preferred futures.
- Registration: In Peppi, unless stated otherwise.
- Contact: futu@utu.fi
