Visual style guideline

The visual style of the dissertations published in the Annales series is defined in the visual style guideline.

› <https://utuguides.fi/c.php?g=657189&p=4624103>

Templates

You can download the Annales series Word templates and instructions from the UTUGuides website. There are four templates in Finnish and English. The templates follow the visual style of the Annales series and their use does not require consulting the visual style guideline.

› <https://utuguides.fi/dissertation>

If you wish to use the InDesign templates of the Annales series, request the download link from › ilme@utu.fi

Covers

When using the Annales Word templates, the printing press does the layout for the cover. Deliver the texts for the cover, title page and loose leaf to the printing house as .rtf or .doc files. The templates and instructions available at › <https://utuguides.fi/c.php?g=657189&p=4624107>.

If you wish to use a photo on the cover, it has to be the same size as the cover (182 x 256mm) and have 300dpi print resolution. Check the copyright and make sure that appropriate information and credit is included on the title page (information on the photo and photographer).

Pages

Requirements for the ready-made, printable file

- File format PDF
- 3mm trim + crop marks
- Photos in CMYK format
- Photo resolution 300ppi in 1:1 size
- Figures, tables and line drawings as vector graphics (e.g. save from Excel as a PDF file)

Download the template and typography guidelines from
<https://utuguides.fi/c.php?g=657189&p=4624107>

Requirements for dissertation materials when page layout is completed at the printing house

- When using the Annales series Word template, send the pages to the printing house both as .dotx and PDF file (see template instructions on how to convert files into PDF). In other cases, deliver the text as a .docx or .rtf file.
- Photo resolution 300ppi in 1:1 size (see above). Deliver the photos separately, even if you have also placed them in the Word template.
- Figures, tables and line drawings as vector graphics (e.g. save from Excel as a PDF file). Deliver the figures, tables and line drawings separately, even if you have also placed them in the Word template.
- The cover text as a .docx or .rtf file, cover photo with 300ppi in 1:1 size.
- Original PDFs included in an article-based dissertation (name them article1.pdf, article2.pdf etc.). Resolution of the PDF files at least 300ppi.
- Deliver all the materials at the same time as a .zip file according to the printing house's instructions.

PROOF

A proof of the dissertation (cover and pages) is delivered to the doctoral candidate. Arrange the delivery with the printing house (pickup, mail). Ensure you have enough time for checking the proof and making corrections. Please note that each round of corrections delays the printing of the dissertation.

The printing house delivers the proof of the cover to the Library and faculty for checking. The printing house also delivers the printed dissertation (including the electronic version) to the Library.

The doctoral candidate makes sure that the pages are correct. Once the possible corrections have been made and the proof is approved, the doctoral candidate gives the printing house a permission to print. Please note that, after the proof is approved, the responsibility for the correctness of the printed material is transferred to the customer.
