Description of the project

JuRe provides elements for a sound constitutional settlement for post-pandemic recovery, and it has its focus on openness of decision-making, citizens' trust in legal oversight and balanced enforcement of individual and collective fundamental rights, often through cross-country comparisons.

For a Fellow with interest in these questions and, especially, in cross-country comparisons of law and politics in the emergencies we would provide an interesting research environment.

Research objectives or research questions of the project

Stable legislative framework: we produce information and increase understanding on the legal assessments and effects of the COVID-19 crisis. We identify and assess the needs to develop crisis legislation and formulate policy recommendations for the development of crisis legislation.

Democratic governance practices: we identify democratically legitimate practices of emergency governance and preconditions for just recovery. We use this information to specify recommendations for the development of crisis legislation.
